TRAGEDY AT NIAGARA FALLS.

(Associated Press Cable.)

NIAGARA, N. Y., Feb. 4. — Thousands of sightseers watched for several hours frantic efforts to save a party of three tourists engulfed in the ice of Niagara Falls, when the great ice bridge broke this afternoon.

A thaw which has lasted for several days had apparently weakened the bridge, for there were then signs of its breaking and it was cleared.

Late in the day a party of several tourists, including Mr. and Mrs. Edridge Stanton of Toronto, Canada, and Barrell Hancock of Cleveland, O., ventured out into the middle of the span. They stood for a time and were about to leave when the ice under them cracked, and began slipping off from the parent mass in great flakes and small bergs that reared as they fell into the whirlpool rapids below.

Instantly panic gripped the tourists and they fled for the shore. Hancock and Mrs. Stanton were too late and slipped, slowly at first and then faster, in the gulf left by the breaking ice. Stanton missing his wife turned and was also dropped into the abyss. The trio did not fall far, but some sixty feet below the original level of the bridge found a temporary resting place. Mrs. Stanton was several feet below her husband and Hancock above both. The noise of the cracking ice and the cries of alarm from the tourists who escaped brought a vast crowd to the scene and the police and fire department were summoned and at once began attempts at rescue. Owing to the lack of ropes it was more than an hour before anything could be done.

Finally ropes were brought, the sightseers pressed back and the lines lowered into the abyss to the people clinging to the ice below. Hancock who was sixty feet down was the first to be reached, and after great difficulty managed to catch the end of the rope and go up hand over hand. Then the efforts to save the Stantons began. Stanton during the wait had been slipping downward until at the time he was on a level with his wife. When the rope came down to him he tried to pass it round under her arms, but his frozen hands could do nothing and she slipped lower. Twice he tried and twice he failed. The third time he caught his swooning wife in his arms, kissed her, and they disappeared into the gulf together.

ELOPERS DIE BY SUICIDE ROUTE.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 4. — Mrs. Frederick Noble, formerly wife of Walter Suydam, and her husband, Frederick Noble, were found in their flat today with their heads close together in the gas oven, dead. They had been dead for some hours when found.

Mrs. Walter Suydam was formerly the wife of one of the richest of the younger society set in the fashionable Long Island colony around Hempstead. She eloped some months ago with Frederick Noble, a plumber's assistant, whom she met while he was engaged in mending one of the drains of her former husband's palatial "estate" near Hempstead.

Their love affair was the scandal of the countryside until her husband found it out and told her she would "have to leave home or quit running with that man." Suydam through all that followed showed remarkable calm but broke down last night when he was called to witness the body of his former wife and the man she had eloped with and married after securing a divorce from Suydam.

The dead left no note or other word to explain their action, but recent stories that Mrs. Suydam was growing tired of the plumber assistant and had offered him money to leave her have been printed and it is thought that her unhappiness and his may have affected their minds.

NATIONAL POLITICAL MOVES.

WOMAN CONVICTED.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 4. — Mrs. Hazzard, accused of manslaughter, was found guilty today of the charge. The jury had been out overnight, and had trouble in reaching a verdict.

TROOPS READY TO GO TO BORDER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 4. — Orders were sent from here today to the commanders of army posts in the southwest and elsewhere to hold themselves and their commands in readiness to be rushed to the Mexican frontier at any moment.
